FRANCE IS SUSPICIOUS OF AMERICA

LEAGUE ROYALTY STRESSED DON'T LIKE U. S. DICTATION

Four Power Naval Conference Looms—Leaving Poor Old France Out of the Pact To Sulk Alone—The Latter Country Claims That the Plan Suggested By Coolidge Would Undermine the League of Nations—Ingratitude Shown By the Country Whom We Helped When In Distress.

Possibilities of a move toward a four-power naval conference at Geneva, with France eliminated, loomed at Washington Tuesday night with receipt of the French reply declining President Coolidge's five-power suggestions.

The American proposals in their present form, the French communication said, "risk compromising the success" of the preparatory disarmament commission created by the League of Nations and already at work in Geneva.

That commission it added, in French opinion affords a place where "the American proposal can effectually be examined."

The reply reached Washington too late for consideration by President Coolidge or Secretary Kellogg in official hours Tuesday night. There was no authorized comment.

Earlier in the day, however, it was emphasized at the White House that President Coolidge had made his proposal because it was "perfectly evident" that practical agreements for naval limitations were not to be expected from the preparatory commission because of the participation of numerous small powers without or virtually without establishments.

The French reply took an exactly reverse view. It asserted the rule of the League of Nations embodying "the principle of the equality of the powers, great or small," which principle it said would be injured by the American plan for a separate conference of the great naval powers.

"Such a move, it was added, would 'also weaken the authority of the League of Nations so essential to the world.'"

In view of the French attitude, official attention was centered on Italy's reply. It is expected to be an acceptance. Some officials go so far as to say that French refusal makes Italian acceptance the more probable.

As Japanese acceptance seems officially assured and British acceptance has been forecast, the four-power possibility is already taking shape in official quarters despite the refusal to discuss to what steps the French rejection might lead.

If examination of the replies of the other three powers leaves any hope for attempting to go on without France, it seems wholly probable that such a suggestion will be forthcoming from Washington.

Some officials believe there are elements in the European political situation which might contribute to success of such a move.

The French note, polite in tone, opened with an expression of French appreciation of "the noble initiative of President Coolidge," as well as reassertion of the "pacific will of France." Appreciation of the American proposal to leave its proposals flexible in an endeavor to take into account the special conditions and requirements of the continental powers, also was expressed.

Article eight of the league covenant, it was pointed out, however, made general arms limitation, "one of the essential duties of the league," with its fulfillment culminating in creation of Geneva preparatory commission. The new American proposal it was added, would divest the commission "of an essential question which figures on its program," to "create" on the side a conference of few powers.

For herself, France reaffirmed the position stated at Washington and again at Geneva for "limitation by global tonnage" under which each power retained freedom to divide an agreed total tonnage limit into such classes of ships as "the sense of its necessities" dictated. The French position that land, sea and air armaments must be considered jointly, also it reaffirmed.

Secretary Kellogg, commenting on the French reply to the American arms conference suggestion, said that there "appeared to be several points in it which must be caused by a misunderstanding of the full purpose of the proposals made by this government."

"It seems to me," said the secretary of state in a formal statement, "that the postponement to the indefinite future of all efforts to grapple with the problem of competitive naval building would strike a serious blow to the cause of disarmament. I very much hope that before the Geneva conference is ended the French government will lend its aid to the consummation of such an agreement."

FREE PICTURE SHOW.

A picture show will be given at Pickaway township centralized school Thursday evening, February 17, after the business meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association. All are urged to come and enjoy the entire program, as there are no admission charges.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Cleveland—Dan Pfaff and Stanley Slagle, important figures in the trial of Pat McDermott for the killing of Don R. Mellett in Canton, were arrested by state dry agents and police Wednesday.

The two men were scheduled to appear on the witness stand in Canton against Ben Rudner, millionaire charged with the Mellett murder.

Dayton—One of the most fashionable weddings of the social season has been canceled because of the ill-timed divorce action filed by the alleged wife of the groom-to-be.

Just a few hours before the time for solemnizing the marriage of Miss Charlotte M. Simms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harris Simms and granddaughter of the late William H. Simms, banker and of the late Ferdinand W. Peck, Chicago pioneer to Kenyon Anthony Stoddard the plans were interrupted.

Summons were served on Stoddard alleging that he is Herman Albert Yaffee of Philadelphia and New York named in a divorce suit filed in Portland Maine, by Edith Widing he is alleged to have married in 1922. Stoddard denied the marriage but added if the ceremony had been performed he "must have been drunk" Then he left town. Miss Simms and her mother followed shortly afterwards, going to Florida.

EX-POSTMASTER AT ADELPHI PASSES AWAY

M. A. Patterson, of Coshocton, formerly of this city, was called to Adelphi by the death of his brother, William A. Patterson, who died at Cleveland Thursday, February 10, aged 75 years.

Altho in ill health for some time, death came unexpectedly. Besides being postmaster of Adelphi for more than 15 years, Mr. Patterson was active in church and civic work, being a lifelong member of the Methodist church and leader of the village orchestra. He was retired as postmaster in 1926.

His death was due to heart trouble. He is survived by his wife, and one daughter, the wife of Rev. Tarbox, of Cleveland.

Of his immediate family three brothers are living. They are M. A. Patterson of Coshocton; Charles Patterson of Decatur, Illinois and Lewis Patterson, of Adelphi.

The funeral services were held at Adelphi Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. J. R. Fields officiating.

FOUR WEALTHY MEN SENTENCED TO WORKHOUSE

Falsifying internal revenue returns drew sentences to the Dayton workhouse for four wealthy Ohio business men. Federal Judge Paul Jones handed five months sentences each to Dan W. Bettelback and E. W. Lizens parger, Cleveland income tax experts for false returns on the earnings of their corporation in 1922. They were partners in the Income Tax Service company in Cleveland, and owe the government $36,000 in back taxes.

William J. Curn, wealthy real estate operator and owner of the Rex theater in Steubenville, was sentenced to four months for false returns. He owed the government $32,000 taxes for 1922.

Louis Krelburg, Akron, former owner of the Miles Royal theater was sentenced to 140 days for failure to pay admission taxes amounting to $2,263 into the internal revenue department.

A Hatteras Indian named Manteo, who was a faithful friend of the whites and was taken on a visit to England, was given the rite of Christian baptism and the order of a feudal baron as Lord of Roanoke August 31, 1587.

A GOOD WOMAN CALLED TO HER ETERNAL HOME

Ellen Downs Foresman Died Tuesday at Her Home on North Pickaway Street.

Mrs. Ellen Downs Foresman, widow of John Hughes Foresman, died at her home, 130 North Pickaway street, Tuesday evening at 9:15 o'clock. The deceased had been ill three months of complications.

Mrs. Foresman was born in this city August 23, 1852. She was a daughter of George W., and Sarah Hunter Downs. She was married to John Hughes Foresman in this city August 16, 1871. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and also a member of the W. C. T. U.

A brother of the deceased, Turney Downs, died in Indianapolis, Indiana, last fall. Mrs. Foresman was the last of her family.

Four daughters and one son survive. They are Mrs. H. T. Crane, of Colum; Mrs. T. A. Bobb of Decatur, Illinois; Mrs. W. T. Bollmeier, of Whitehall, Illinois and Miss Mary Ellen Foresman, of Columbus; and John Henry Foresman, of Cincinnati.

The deceased spent her whole life in the city of her birth. She was a kindly, Christian woman, and was one of the best of mothers.

The funeral services will be held at her late home Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Owing to the illness of Rev. McElfresh, Rev. G. B. Work, of Columbus, will officiate. The interment will be in Forest cemetery.

BOY CONFESSES TO MURDERING MOTHER AND SON

Claims Radio Music Stirred Passion and He Commits Crime.

Blatant strains of radio music which made him feel "queer" inspired Floyd Hewitt, 16, to club to death Mrs. Celia Brown and her five year old son, of Conneaut, Ohio.

Such was the amazing substance of a confession made by the youth late Tuesday, eight hours after Frederick Brown returned home from work and discovered the bodies of his wife and son.

Drunk with music, Hewitt confessed he made advances to Mrs. Brown. She first slapped his face, he said. Then the farm boy surprised his questioners by declaring: "I became crazy with love for her. She repulsed me. I became blind with fury."

"Finally she picked up stove poker. I grabbed a baseball bat and climbed the stairs to the second floor after her. She struck me with the poker. Then I swung the bat and struck her again and again."

Hearing screams from the basement, Hewitt said he dashed downstairs, and discovered the murdered woman's five year old son, Frederick Jr., cowering in a corner.

"The boy put his hands over his head as I approached," the slayer explained. "I crashed the bat down on his head. He didn't scream any more."

After hiding the death-dealing weapon in a wastebasket, Hewitt declared he calmly washed his blood-covered hands and went home and slept serenely.

Arrest of Hewitt followed discovery of a button torn from his coat in the death house. He lives across the street from the Browns.

BETTER LIGHTS

For Country Nights Hold Boys and Girls On the Farm.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Mass' desertion of the farm boys seeking fame and fortune in the city has reached its peak and is tobogganing down the other side of the incline, according to W. C. Coleman, lighting and heating engineer of Wichita, Kans. in an address here.

"Following the war the great cities attracted and held hundreds of thousands of farmer boys," said Mr. Coleman. "High wages, theaters, and other amusements had a great deal to do with this wholesale exodus, but the farmer has always contended that it was the darkness of the country night that made the bright lights of the city so enticing to his children.

"In the last few years much of this darkness has been taken from country home life. Gasoline pressure lamps and lanterns that can be turned upside down while lighted without danger of spilling or exploding are now giving to the farmer an abundance of illumination that is superior to the average city light. A gasoline pressure range in the kitchen develops a gas, the fumes of which are non-poisonous and which produces a cooking heat more intense and speedier than natural or artificial city gas.

"In the home a new safety gasoline pressure method may be used in heating hot water and the iron, while power units often run the washing machine and the vacuum cleaners. Incubator brooder, pump, milking machine, and cream separator at the barn are operated with storage batteries and the tractors take the place of the old horse drawn machinery for field work.

"Thus times have changed. The automobile has cut the time distance between farm and city two-thirds; radio has brought city entertainment direct to the farm; and while these have helped, it is really better lighting in the country home that has turned the tide.

SOUTHERNSTATES IN GRIP OF SEVERE STORM

New Orleans, Feb. 14.—One death and heavy damage was caused by unusually hard rains in southern Mississippi and Louisiana yesterday and in Mississippi, the Leaf and Bouie rivers still were rising today.

It was estimated that more than 3,000 telephones were rendered useless in New Orleans, which had more than two inches of rain Sunday afternoon and a total of 5.7 between 7 p. m. Saturday and this morning.

J. M. Gillis, a well-to-do farmer of Perry county, Mississippi, lost his life in attempting to float rafter logs in the Bouque Homer river.

OBITUARIESWILLIAM WAPLES.

Funeral services for William Waples, 77, who died Sunday at his home in Era, near Mt. Sterling, will be held at 2 p. m., central standard time, tomorrow at the residence. Burial will be in Mt. Sterling cemetery. His widow, Mrs. Anna Waples, and a daughter, Mrs. L. F. Reichelderfer, Columbus, survive.

JOHN LEWIS.

Funeral services were held at 1:30 p. m., central standard time, today at Danville for John Lewis, 35, farmer and world war veteran, who died Sunday at his home near Mt. Sterling. Burial was in Sedalia cemetery. His father, Samuel Lewis; a sister, Miss Maggie Lewis, and three brothers, Ross and Peake Lewis, London, and Charles Lewis, Cook, survive.

Cato's Three Laments

Plutarch says that Cato declared that in his whole life he most repented of three things: One was that he had trusted a secret to a woman; another, that he went by water when he might have gone by land; the third, that he had remained one whole day without doing any business of importance.

PATTERSON FUNERAL

Services For Adelphi Postmaster Held This Afternoon.

Funeral services for William W. Patterson, aged 75, resident and retired postmaster of Adelphi, Ohio, who died suddenly of heart trouble, at the home of his daughter in Cleveland, Thursday, were held at Adelphi this afternoon at 1:30 p. m.

Although in ill health for some time, death came unexpectedly. Besides being postmaster of Adelphi for more than 15 years, Mr. Patterson was active in church and civic work, being a life-long member of the Methodist church and leader of the village orchestra. He was retired as postmaster in 1926.

Besides his daughter, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Etta Patterson. Rev. J. R. Fields, of Adelphi, officiated at the services.

EX-GOV. HARMON IN HOSPITAL

Cincinnati, Feb. 14.—Former Governor Judson Harmon is in a hospital here suffering from a minor ailment for which he may have to undergo an operation, it was learned tonight. The operation, however, would not be serious, it was said. Mr. Harmon, who celebrated his eighty-first birthday recently, went to the hospital several days ago. His condition tonight was so much improved the operation may be avoided, and he plans to return home in a few days.

TWO BROTHERS

Are Under Arrest On Murder Charge.

Washington, Pa., Feb. 14.—Roy and Robert Wenrich, brothers, of Denbo, were charged with the murder of Lewis I. Knapp and Paul A. Fox, coal and iron policeman employed by the Vesta Coal Co. at Denbo, on information filed today by County Detective William B. Dinsmore. Both men were committed to jail without bail.

Warren Wenrich, another brother, and two other men were held under $5,000 bail each on charges of violating the prohibition law.

The five men were arrested after an investigation of the slaying of the two officers last Monday night, when they attempted to arrest several men in a crusade against bootlegging in the mining village.

U. B. CHURCH ATTEMPTS TO STOP AIMEE

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 14. Members of the United Brethren church where Aimee Semple McPherson, California, evangelist, is scheduled to speak tonight, have telephoned Bishop William Bell in Washington asking him to bar her appearance.

Dawson Horine, spokesman for the protesting parishioners, said he felt that "Mrs. McPherson has not been completely vindicated of the charges brought against her and that her present speaking campaign is not clean cut."

GOOD HI GAMES BOOKEDFOR FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18.

The Circleville High cage squad is being drilled hard this week in preparation for their conflict with the third place Frankfort High Five Friday night at the C. H. S. gym. The latter is the only team that has been able to upset the league leading Wilmington bunch and the local lads took one fall out of Frankfort earlier in the season.

Captain Snider is out with an injury which necessitates a change in the line-up and Vlerebome, second highest scorer in the league will act as captain.

Frankfort stands third with five wins and two losses and Roundtown fifth with four wins and five losses in the S. C. O. the Tigers aggregation being expected to finish strong on their last three games.

The Circleville girls sextet has shown great form this season losing only two games. In the other conflict of the evening they will be out to revenge one of their defeats at the hands of Frankfort. The Red and Black lassies will clinch first place if they carry off first honors in the conflict.

The probable starting line-up for the boys' game is as follows:

King Bird Objectedto Passing Airplane

Notes of unusual interest from observers as set down by Prof. Edward H. Forbush, state ornithologist, are as follows:

There is a report from Maine that an eagle while flying near a house with a ruffed grouse, apparently lost its hold and in an attempt to get a better one hurled its prey through a window and into the kitchen sink. As the householder was in the yard at the time, the eagle did not stop to see what happened to its dinner.

A pair of king birds, which had been very active in the air, driving every crow and hawk away from their vicinity, saw a new and larger bird coming, which caused great excitement. It was an airplane flying low. The male finally pursued it, screaming his defiance, and attempting to attack it, but found himself in too fast company, and came back screaming and fluttering as he usually does after a victorious chase.

An observer saw a snowy owl teasing a rabbit as a cat would play with a mouse. The bird did not strike its prey but followed it around. If the rabbit stopped at the foot of a fence post the owl alighted on the spit, then dropped down, while the rabbit ran behind the post, but made no effort to get away by burst of speed. The observer watched for about twenty minutes and learned later that the owl kept up its sport for a long time before killing the rabbit.—Brockton Enterprise.

Hungary's First King

Hungary, not yet formally a republic, has been celebrating the nine hundred and twenty-eighth anniversary of the coronation of her first ruler, King Stephen. A procession of a hundred thousand people, watched by twice as many more, was headed by the regent, as the head of the state is still called, and by some of the Hapsburg archdukes who would like to be Stephen's successors.

Before these notables was borne the embalmed hand of King Stephen, who spent his life converting his people to Christianity by the strange argument of the sword.

CORN BORER IS DISCUSSED IN
JOINT SESSIONBy Farmers and Members of Chamber of Commerce
Tuesday Evening.

The Corn Borer Menace, was the subject discussed at the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening. Members of the chamber of commerce, who are vitally interested in the welfare of the agriculturalist, took up the matter together with the farmers of this county, a number of whom were present. The discussion followed an address on the ravages of the insect in southern Canada and northern Ohio by Howard Orr. He was followed by H. S. Lewis, the newly appointed Pick-away county farm agent.

The European corn borer made its first appearance nine years ago in the county of Essex, in southern Ontario, the county opposite Detroit, Michigan, which was the first agricultural region in this country, where the ravages of the corn borer was noticed. The insect finally worked its way into northern Ohio. It was first noticed in Lucas county and worked its way to Wood and other counties. The migration of the borer is to the westward, the prevailing winds is probably responsible for this, in that, it comes south about thirty miles, while it moves westward eighty miles, nearly three times further westward than it does southward in its migration. The borer has been as far south as Delaware, and it is thought that in two year's time this county will probably entertain the European immigrant.

Wooster university and other experimental stations are doing their utmost to battle with the menace, but so far, have not found anything effective.

The borer in the moth stage lays its eggs underneath the blades of corn along in the month of July. In September these eggs hatch and the worm then bores into the standing green corn; from 27 to 79 borers may infect one stalk of corn; the average is 44.
Many farmers congratulate themselves that the borer has passed them by, but to their chagrin they awake the next morning to find whole fields of corn broken down, practically ruined and lost. The work seemed to have been done in one night.

The only effective measures that in a degree have proven beneficial are clean up your corn fields, in order to destroy all hiding places for the insect, which in its larva stage hiber-nates thru the winter; plow deep, clean the fields of stubble, burn all stalks. Some farmers shred their corn and place it in silos, but all corn stalks are not disposed of effectively, as fodder is fed to stock, it not disposed of effectively and enough is wasted in the barn lot to allow the germinating of thousands of the cater pillars that soon become moths and spread devastation over the entire corn field in one season.

Compulsory cleaning of corn fields thruout the entire corn belt will in time be enforced. A law to that effect will be passed to protect the farmer against himself; whether this will stamp out the menace that is fast approaching us, is a question, but will be tried out. It is not so sure that in time we will have to give up the raising of corn, and try our hand at other crops, but we are not sure, but that the corn borer may turn its attention to other crops, when it is found that corn is not its objective. The seriousness of the menace cannot be realized by farmers and the general public. The scourage may be a blessing in disguise and may force us to raise other crops and diversify our methods of farming.
All we can do is to prepare for the worst and secure laws that will compel all farmers to act together if the menace appears; already the government has taken cognizance of the scourage and has voted millions for the protection of the farmers.

His Opinion

"I see by the paper," said Mrs.
Johnson, "that a lady over at Ram-diddy has got a divorce from her husband, and the court is making him pay her $20 a week alimony."

"Huh!" snorted Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, "The' hain't no darn lady worth no $20 a week to no man.
After he's paid for one week he ort to own her, I-gorry!"

And then the squabble began all over again.—Kansas City Star.

parel gradually have appeared on the Seminole Do WithoutForm of Government

The Seminole Indians of Florida have no government of any kind and no chief. Their laws seem to be embodied in one rule of conduct—never to lie. In the picturesque palmetto camps there are no doors, no police, no lying, no cheating, no stealing, no private property, but there is order, there is peace, there is respect and there is honor. Woman among the Seminoles occupies a high position. Instead of being virtually a slave, as she is in certain tribes, she is regarded as a companion, and marriages, performed according to tribal ritual, are more binding than among those of the western Indians, according to one scientist. They live according to the same ceremonial customs that prevailed when De Soto entered Tampa bay in 1539, handing down from father to son the traditions of a proud race.—

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISEPartiality

Ex-Mayor Hylan said of a notorious miscarriage of justice:

"A woman claimed that she treated her daughter and her stepdaughter exactly alike.

"I love them both," she said to a visitor one day, 'and I treat them both alike. No favoritism.'

"Just then the front door opened and the woman called sweetly:

"Is that you, darling?"

"No, ma'am," answered the tired voice of the stepdaughter, 'it's only me.'"

states that:

"This outfit handles more easily than a single

AMUSEMENTS

One of the world's most seductive screen charmers—being made violent love to by the champion lovmakers of two nations—this is the unique combination of the screen in "Flesh and the Devil," which comes to the Met theater today.

Greta Garbo, blonde charmer of the screen and famous star from Europe, will know forever the difference between American and European love-making as a result of her role in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture—in fact, she had to act as a sort of judge of a battle for supremacy between the lovmakers of the American and the Swedish screen champions.

One of her screen lovers is John Gilbert, hero of "The Big Parade," "The Merry Widow" and famous for his romantic roles—the other is Lars Hanson, the "Swedish Barrymore."

These three form a strange triangle in the new picture, a vivid drama of modern Europe, filmed by Clarence Brown from "The Undying Past," by the great European dramatist, Hermann Sudermann.

It is a gripping story based on sociological conditions in the old world hanging on traditions of love and marriage and with Miss Garbo in the role of a seductive modern Circe whose beauty and charm lures men to ruin. John Gilbert plays one of her lovers and Hanson the other—who marries her to precipitate one of the most powerful dramatic situations ever portrayed on the screen.

Heavy Traffic Barred

The town of Thorne, near Doncaster, England, with 9,000 inhabitants, finds itself in a curiously humiliating position.

It has no road by which vehicles weighing over five tons can enter its borders, each approach being over bridges whose loads must be under that weight. The only way a steam-roller can get in is by rail. Lorries of over five tons must stop on the other side of the bridges and unload there into drays.

This is very expensive, and Thorne is asking for stronger bridges.

ECONOMY OF
HORSE POWER
DISCUSSION

Large Teams Will Result in Great Saving of Labor and Add to Income.

The following article on the "Economy of Horse Power," is from the pen of Wayne Dinsmore, of the Horse Association of America Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Illinois:

"Viewed from the standpoint of the farmer or the city man with work to be done, horses and mules are living locomotives, capable of drawing very heavy loads at varying rates of speed, just as a steam locomotive draws long trains over steel rails.

"They have the advantage to the farmer of being a home product. They are put together on the farm, built out of farm products, are maintained thereon and are longlived and low in cost of maintenance and repair.

"They have greater reserve power than even the steam locomotive, and can, in emergencies, start a load four times as great as a steam locomotive, when their proportionate weights are considered.

"They furnish flexible power, for they can be used in 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 14, 18, 22, 26, or even 33 horse teams, according to the nature of the work that needs to be done.

"In Oregon and Washington, where the combined harvester threshed first came into general use, 90 per cent of the combines are horse drawn, and teams ranging from 26 to 35 horses driven by one man, are so common that they do not excite even passing comment.

"Ohio has 244,703 farms of which there are 13,532 having 175 acres or more.

"These 13,532 farms will average eight or more work horses or mules, and on every one of these farms the use of 8, 10, 14, or 18 horse teams, or even larger, if practical, will result in saving $200 or more per farm in labor alone, and will enable a farmer to plant with greater timeliness, thereby favorably influencing the crop yields.

"There is nothing new nor mysterious about these large teams. They have been in general use for thirty years in Oregon and Washington. They are controllad easily and surely with a single pair of lines going to the leaders only. All others are automatically controlled by 'tying in' and 'bucking back,' which is a simple system of controlling the other horses. It is so simple that any farmer can understand and readily apply it after he has once seen it in use; but it is practically impossible to make anyone understand or believe in the system until they see it in actual use in field work.

"We know this to be true, for the Horse Association of America spent a great deal of time, money and of printers' ink in attempting to explain and popularize 'tying in and bucking back' system, without actual demonstrations, and made but very little headway; but as soon as we sent men out to actually hitch and drive teams to show farmers how to do it, and how to make up the equalizers, tie chains and buck straps, immediate progress was evident—again demonstrating that the best way to introduce new labor saving methods is to actually do the work the new way, and leave one or two men in each community actually using the new methods, as an example and guide to others in the community. In Montana, where such work was carried out in 1923 and in 1924, with the cooperation of the Montana Agricultural College, thousands of big teams of 8, 12, 16 or 20 horses are now in use, and the cost of crop production has been materially decreased. The same result will follow here in Ohio.

"The whole problem of horses versus motors is an economic one. Men who have work to be done, in cities or on farms, view horses primarily as machines with which work may be done. From this standpoint they consider their initial cost, length of useful life, cost of repairs, operating expense and the work that can be done with these respective types of power units.

"Equally important, tho often overlooked, is the effect which the use of one or the other of these kinds of power exerts upon the prices paid for farm products.

"The average farm work horse consumes annually 25.3 bushels of corn, 37.8 bushels of oats, 1.7 tons of hay and 1.96 acres of pasture, or approximately the crop production of four acres of fertile land. The use of this grain, hay and pasture for horse feed withholds that much from the market, as it would otherwise be sold either directly or thru meat animals. From an economic basis, therefore, horses and mules on farms act as stabilizing factors, enabling farmers to secure much higher prices for farm products than if the land now growing horse feed were to be diverted to food production."

Holy Oil

The holy anointing oil referred to in the Bible had a base of olive oil and was scented with flowery myrrh, sweet cinnamon, sweet calamus and cassia. These ingredients were probably mixed with the oil in powder form, the mixture then heated until the oil absorbed the odors and allowed to stand until the insoluble matter settled and the oil could be decanted.

Will you say it just for the day or through the years to come?

NOW comes the time of year when the telltale stethoscope finds hearts more aflutter, when pulses beat with ardency renewed.

And no wonder! For just in the offing is St. Valentine's, the day set apart by the Saint of Hearts for all true lovers . . . filial, fraternal and romantic . . . to play the roles of Romeo and Juliet, or of Darby and Joan.

In such a crisis, adolescent youth seeks an outlet for his welling emotion in a bit of lacy paper, a red heart or two, a sugary quatrain or sonnet.

But we elderly folk, of twenty and beyond, must find a more lasting and worthy expression of our sentiment.

There is no finer gift than an Elgin Watch. Featured in a wide style variety and sold at prices ranging from $15 to $1700.

Fortunately, that's not hard to do. For just 'round the corner is a jeweler, and he deals in valentines of four dimensions . . . Beauty, Utility, Permanence and Value.

Valentines wrought of gold and silver or set with a precious jewel . . . valentines not necessarily expensive yet enduring, to be admired and cherished through the years.

Tokens that link the lovely with the lasting, the precious with the practical . . . a ring . . . a pin . . . perhaps a silver vase . . . or best of all, an Elgin watch.

A gift that will serve the minutes and the hours, and survive the decades. A gift, indeed, that will "say it for a lifetime."

CHIEF OF POLICE

Is Re-instated By Order of Court.

Lisbon, O., Feb. 14.—John H. Fultz, chief of police, who was twice removed from office during the last year by Mayor W. L. Fogo, today was ordered re-instated by Judge Thomas D. Price of New Lexington, presiding in the Columbiana county common pleas court here.

Judge Price ruled that Fultz's removal last fall on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, and disrespect and disobedience toward a superior was too severe. Instead, Judge Price held, the suspension should not have exceeded five days, and as this period has already expired, Fultz was immediately restored to his place.

Fultz carried the fight to court after the Wellsville civil service commission upheld the mayor's dismissal order. In the first case, Fultz also won in common pleas court, and the latter ruling was affirmed when the city carried the contest to the appellate court.

MASON BROS. BROADCAST AN

ENCORE

To Its Gigantic Slaughter Sale

Sale Will Continue Until and Including Feb. 26

It was suggested---requested and practically demanded by a great number of our patrons that we continue our SALE, because many people wished to purchase furniture and stoves etc., When people get greater values than they anticipated it's only reasonable that they "CRY FOR MORE."

This SALE has been free from disappointments, that is the one reason why the "ENCORE" was forced upon us. We really wanted to close the sale last Saturday, just as it was advertised, but when hundreds of our customers earnestly pleaded for more time we simply had to comply with their wishes. Now that the sale is EXTENDED we hope that those that were slow to act will join the crowds and supply their needs too.

OF INTEREST
To Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

New York City, Feb. 15.—The first definite step towards the formation of an international federation of Business and Professional Women has been taken with the selection of Miss Harriet Taylor of New York City to head the committee of international relations of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

The appointment has just been announced by Miss Lena Madson Phillips of New York City, president of the Federation, who has likewise appointed to the committee other women who travel extensively or are now engaged in foreign travel.

Miss Taylor is one of the directors of the World Acquaintance Tours which carry groups abroad annually. Her contracts are many on the continent of Europe, for she has crossed the Atlantic 22 times and has visited every European country. Miss Taylor was in charge of Y. W. C. A. war activities in France during and at the immediate close of the war. She has attended 10 international conferences and conventions, and numbers on her acquaintance list many of the most prominent business and professional women abroad.

Other members of her committee who have already been appointed are Miss Ida Anderson, of Indianapolis, Indiana, well known newspaperwoman, traveler and lecturer; Mrs. Stewart Smith, of Stamford, Conn.; Miss Lillian Burton, who is at present in France, and Dr. Lillian Shields, of Oakland, Calif., who is at present making a trip around the world. Still other members will be added as occasion arises.

The duty of this international relations committee, which is newly created this year in the National Federation, will be to make contracts with foreign business women, and to survey informally the business and professional women's field in other countries with a view to determining where the participation of women in business life is sufficiently great to make possible the implanting of federation ideas and ideals.

Supplementing this foreign survey will be a conference in New York City the latter part of March with various foreign born women who this year took part in the Women's Art and Industries Exhibit at the Hotel Commodore in New York, and who are closely in touch both with American business women and with business women abroad.

Results of the survey made by the international relations committee will be reported to the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Oakland, Calif., in July.

TELEGRAM IN COURT

Government Scores Long-Sought Point In Daugherty-Miller Conspiracy Trial.

New York, Feb. 14.—The government, following a protracted verbal battle, today scored a long-sought point in the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial when it gained admission into evidence of several telegrams exchanged between former Alien Property Custodian Thomas W. Miller and his secretary, Frederick Wilson. The telegrams dealt with the approval of the $7,000,000 German claim for war-seized property, for which the defendants are alleged to have shared in a $391,000 bribe.

Mal Daugherty, of Washington C. H., Ohio, brother of the former attorney general, was in court today for the first time, and was expected to take the stand as a state witness. At the previous trial, which resulted in a jury disagreement, Mal testified that records of the Midland bank of Washington C. H., of which he was president, had been destroyed.

When They Became Engaged

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

SOMETIMES Tom sat tensely at the little writing table for an hour or more writing to his beloved Edith.
Sometimes he just sat sprawled out in an easy chair before the fire idly dreaming—of Edith, who lived eight hundred miles away and whom he saw but seldom.

This keeping bachelor apartments with a man engaged was beginning to get on Jim's nerves. For weeks, even before Tom was engaged, he had been,
as Jim thought, mentally unbalanced.

Perhaps the worst feature of Tom's malady was his apparent joyousness.
He whistled like a canary bird when he dressed in the morning. He always thought the weather was fine and he always felt tip top. In a way Jim envied him. But then, thought Jim, Tom no doubt deserved what happiness he felt. Falling in love—loving a girl before he knew whether she cared for him, proposing—after these dreaded preliminaries he surely deserved a period of bliss.

Kate Fenwick had worked in the same office with Jim for two or three years. Nice girl, Kate—was what he thought about her if he thought anything. He saw her and talked with her every day. She usually took his dictation. Sometimes she showed him little things she had bought—wedding presents for girls who were getting married. Little toys for her nephews and nieces.

Business was extremely brisk toward spring and it was apparent one Saturday that some special reports would have to be put through on Sunday. The president of the concern asked Jim to attend to them and incidentally suggested to Kate Fenwick that she meet Jim at the office to take dictation.

They began working that spring Sunday at nine o'clock and Jim was so interested in his work that he never once thought of Kate as anything more than an automaton until it was past twelve. That was one thing that made Kate such a good stenographer. She was never obtrusive —didn't use perfume or wear dangling bracelets or bright colors.

They finished their work at about the same time and for no reason in particular Jim asked Kate what she was going to do next. Kate looked up, blushing a little, and Jim felt that perhaps he had been abrupt with her. She had worked like a little steam engine and he had never thought of her as being even human.
That is why he asked her to have luncheon with him. There were so few places open downtown on Sunday and she lived far uptown. After luncheon he asked her again what she was going to do, and again she blushed and said nothing. "I'm going to take a ferry across the river and then take a walk along the river bank on the other side," he told her. Kate said she envied him and so Jim asked her if she would care to go with him.

Spring in the air made the river bank very beautiful that afternoon, and as Jim and Kate climbed up and down the steep embankments Jim held Kate's round little arm to keep her from slipping. He made no effort to be agreeable or otherwise to this girl whom he saw every day but he began to realize that it was very good to have her with him.

Then they sat on an embedded boulder that looked out over the river below. Jim felt as if he were a thousand miles away from the city. He looked at the shapely hand stretched out on the rock beside him, and studied those fingers that had worked so efficiently for him that morning.

It seemed the most natural thing in the world to lift that hand up in his and as it felt very docile he lifted it to his lips to kiss it. Suddenly Jim felt awkward. He felt as if he had arrived somewhere without knowing how he had come. He began to wonder whether he could trace his steps back again. Then he wondered whether he really wanted to.

"You aren't angry with me, are you —Kate?" he asked.

"Of course not, Jim," she said, and he noticed that tears gleamed in her pretty brown eyes. "You know I have always liked you, Jim."

"And I have always thought you the best stenographer in the world," said Jim, feeling suddenly that perhaps he had better find his way back again. But Kate took her hand away from him and turned, trying in vain to hide a falling tear.

"I think much more than that," said Jim, feeling suddenly very forlorn without that little hand in his. He took it back again and kissed it.

"I'm so happy, Jim—dear," said Kate, and then without knowing how it happened Jim realized that his arms were around Kate and that her smooth little head was resting on his shoulder.

When Jim got back to the apartment at six that night he found Tom sprawling in an easy chair before the fireplace in which glowed a few fading embers. Jim took off his coat and hat and dropped down in a chair on the other side of the fireplace. For an hour the two men sat there—the same rather foolish, contented expression written on both faces. Then when the last flicker of light died from the embers Tom roused himself. He suggested having something to eat.

"Something to eat—that's right—I'd forgotten," stammered Jim. "You see, old pal, I'm engaged."

WOMEN'S PROFESSIONAL CLUB MEETING

Miss Myers and Miss Zeise of Columbus Address the Local Club.

The Women's Professional and Business club gave a six o'clock dinner at their club rooms Tuesday evening.

Owing to a slight accident that befell Miss Jean Cavers state president of the Women's Professional and Business club and also head of the Columbus School for Girls, she was unable to appear. This was quite a disappointment to the members of the club as Miss Cavers was the headliner of the evening's program. In her place came Miss Helen Myers state membership chairman of the Woman's Business club and also Miss Ethel Zeise, president of the Columbus club.

Miss Myers talk was along the congratulatory line. She assisted in organizing the local body and this was the first time that she was able to come and tell her club sisters how glad she was to see its healthful growth.

In a small town you seem to have the opportunity of getting closer to each other and you take more interest in your organization. You have a better club than most towns of your size in the state.

Miss Zeise also gave a most glowing description of the activities of the club she presides over in Columbus.

The evening was most enjoyably spent. The talks of the visitors was most interesting.

Proposing With Flowers

While the Swiss mountaineer is a stolid, unromantic man, as a rule, yet he has a pretty custom of proposing by flowers. In the Bernese Oberland if a maid accepts a bouquet of edelweiss from a man she at the same time accepts him as her fiancé, the idea being that the man has risked his life to obtain the flowers for the woman he loves.

THE JURY'S VERDICT IS $50,000.

FIFTY thousand dollars! Your home, your savings all must go to satisfy it—and all you can accumulate until the judgment is satisfied.

Your mind flashes back over the accident—a slippery street, a dark, rainy night; you didn't see the man until your headlights showed him a few feet away; and you jammed on the brakes and swerved your car—but too late.

It might happen to you. Such accidents occur constantly. And $50,000 verdicts today are not uncommon.

Protect yourself with adequate liability and property damage insurance. A policy with $25,000—$50,000 limits costs only little more than your $5,000, $10,000 policy.

Signing the Constitution

Bancroft, the historian, says that "Eleven of the thirteen state delegations signed the proposed Constitution.
Since the two other delegations had previously left the convention, the signing was unanimous. All perhaps had grave doubts about one feature or provision or another, but they had buddled better than they knew, and they all had the courage to sign the concrete result of their arduous work."

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT

ROBTOWN U. B. CHURCH.

On account of the condition of roads we have failed to hold our special meetings, but Sunday evening, February 20, we will begin.

Subject for Sunday evening: "The Corn Borer and the Human Borer, Menacing Twins of Ohio."

Monday evening: "There Must be an Adequate Vision for the Task."

Tuesday evening is Jackson township centralized school night when they will render two pieces of music.

Wednesday evening Muhlenberg school night.

Thursday evening Scioto school night.

Each evening service will be opened by a leader from the C. E. society.
Services each evening at 7:30 except Saturday.

HARTMAN THEATER.

Arthur Hammerstein's "Rose Marie" which will be the attraction at the Hartman theater, Columbus, all this week commencing Monday night, February 14, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees, is good entertainment.

The music of this comedy operetta is perhaps the best known of any production in years, and the "Indian Love Call" song, which runs thru the whole piece together with the song "Rose Marie" are favorites everywhere.
Other songs in it which are also popular wherever music is heard are "Why Shouldn't We" and "The Coor of My Dreams."

Beulah Berson, who sings the title role with a clear sweet soprano and a contagious vivacity, is pretty and dainty, just the type one might expect to find. Paul J. Gregory, as Rose Marie's sweetheart, has looks that hold the attention of the so-called gentler sex; then he wins the sympathy of the entire audience with his clear ringing tenor and dramatic acting. His part is that of Jim Kenyon a reckless and hot headed young miner who is in love with Rose Marie La Flame. Thomas Chadwick makes a heroic figure as Sergeant Malone, of the picturesque Canadian northwest mounted police, and when he appears at the head of a body of these famous exponents of law and order, with their rousing chorus, it is an inspiring sight. Hazen Gaurdeau, as Wanda, the Indian girl, dances so gracefully that she is a feature of the show especially when she leads the fifty girls in the much talked about "Totem Tom Tom" number. Then there are Harry Koler and Marie Eline, the comedians, whose absurdities are ludicrous.
